Against the Current

Timothy Kang grew up in abject poverty in North Korea. To escape the dictatorial system, he flees with his mother to China, but is deported and sentenced to imprisonment in a North Korean prison camp. In the darkest hour of his captivity, a friend wrests a promise from him: if he gets out of the prison camp alive, he will bring these atrocities to public attention. And he survives! An incredible report on people whom the world has forgotten.

- A moving biography
- With illustrations

Timothy Kang

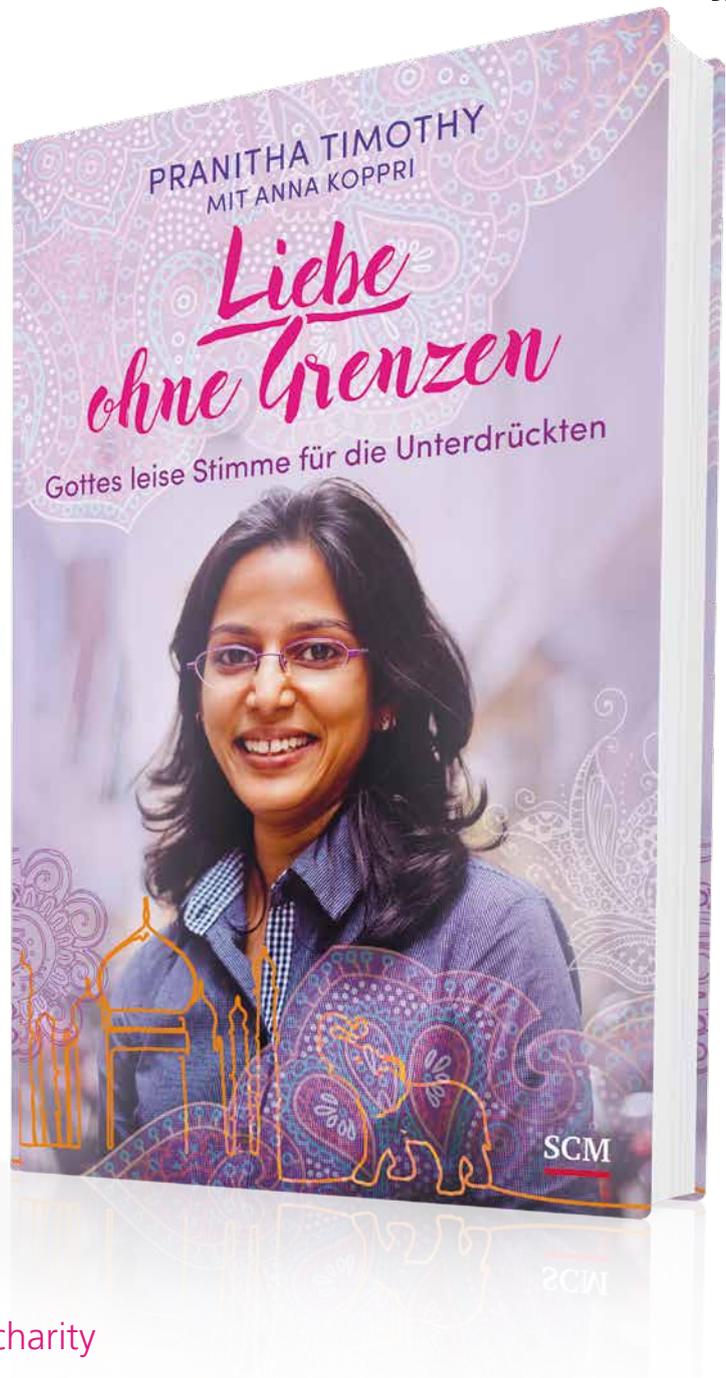

was born in North Korea in 1986. He miraculously survived a two-year imprisonment there and now lives with his wife in South Korea. He is head of the Bible circle “Scion of the Reunification” and the Talbukmin community.

Love Without Limits

With her soft voice and the power of God, Pranitha Timothy combats modern slavery, oppression, human trafficking and violence in India. She has given hope to thousands of men, women and children whose voices are too weak to be heard. The caste system and exploitation in India already came to her attention as the child of missionary doctors. But it is only when she receives Jesus in her heart that she finds the courage to pass this love on at the risk of her own life. A deeply touching biography.

Getting Away at All Costs

Millions of people are streaming to Europe to escape poverty, terror and violence. But what do people feel who have had to leave everything behind because their houses have been destroyed – and because their families have been shot, raped and murdered, and all their belongings have been taken from them? Tobias Kley has collected their stories, which tell of fear, terrible destruction, gangs of human traffickers and families that have been torn apart. Deeply moving, and nevertheless full of hope.

- Refugees – a highly topical subject
- A new, promising author

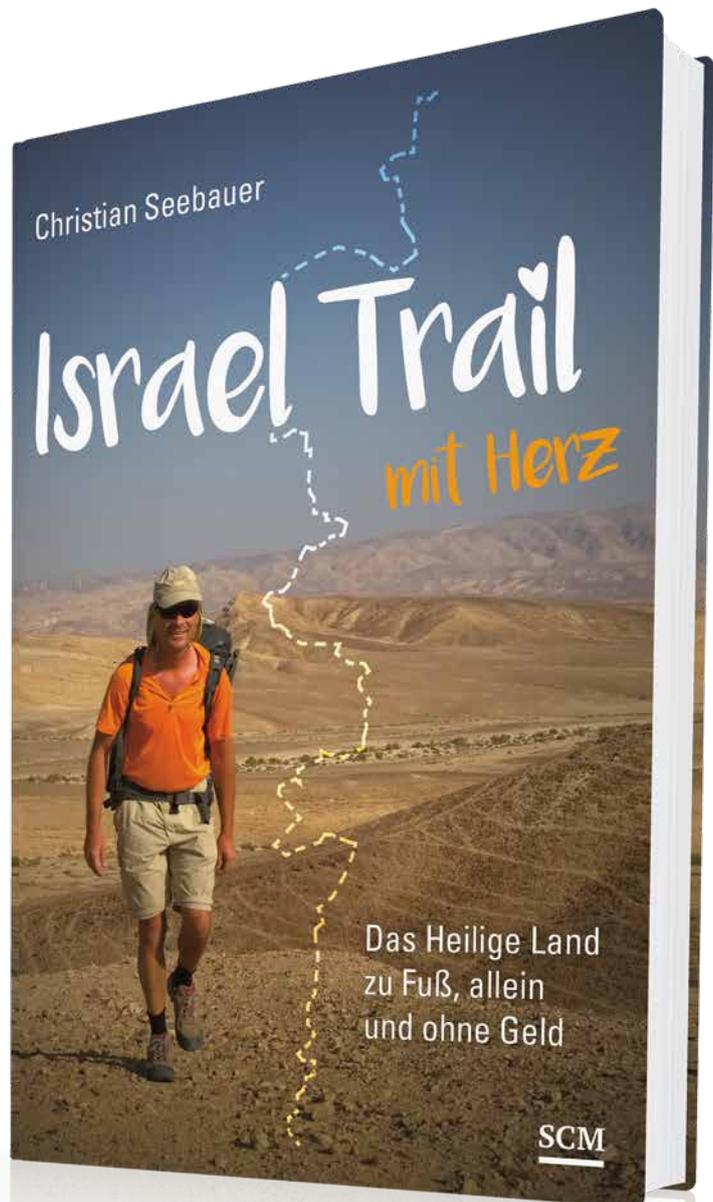

Tobias Kley, born in 1979, at first tried to give meaning to his life with decathlon and boxing, until he came to know Jesus. Now an evangelist with the Christian mission “Kontaktmission”, he has initiated the “GetAwayDays” for fringe groups.

Israel Trail with a Heart

1,000 kilometres in 46 days – through the desert! Christian Seebauer takes on this challenge. The experiment: he wants to hike through all of Israel on the Israel National Trail – without spending a single cent. His aim: to take himself to his physical and mental limits. He sets off with only the most basic necessities. Temperatures of up to 45 degrees Celsius, endless expanses of landscape, breathtaking natural phenomena.

- A gripping, very personal account
- For all who love authentic personal reports

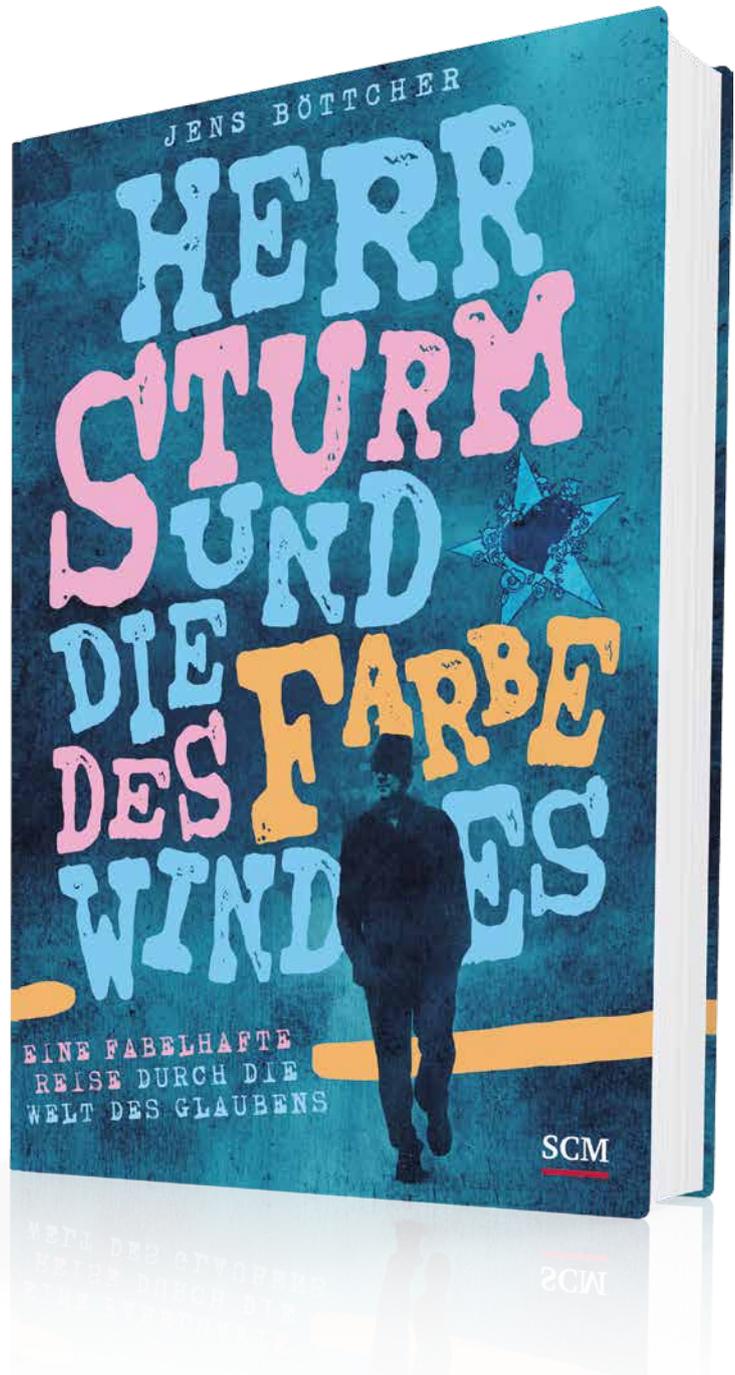

Christian Seebauer, born in 1967, was an electrical engineer and then administrative director of a German bank. After suffering burnout, he walked the Camino de Santiago. He has been an artist and author since 2000. (www.seebauers-world.com)

Mr Sturm and the Colour of the Wind

Mr Sturm is sick of life. The unsuccessful author ekes out a living by churning out texts for mindless TV soap operas. An enigmatic classified ad calls on somebody to interview 12 people and write a book about their faith. The pay is good, and Sturm takes on the job. But these conversations stir him up more than he had expected. He is confronted not only with the faith of his interviewees, but also with his own painful history.

- Poetic, thoughtful, impressive
- An author on a great life journey

Jens Böttcher

is a musician, singer/songwriter, author, and writer for various TV formats. He sings and writes for those who are sensitive, contemplative, yearning and speechless.

When the Sky Tore Open

Ireland, 1845: the great ideals of the Reformation seem forgotten in these times of war and hatred. The landowner Emily is caught in the crossfire, since she loves a man to whom her love is forbidden. When Emily loses her inheritance, she is forced to leave Ireland. Answers await her in Van Diemen's Land (present-day Tasmania). And she discovers that love can overcome all barriers set up by humans.

- The new novel from the best-selling author of "The Printer's Assistant"
- A gripping love story from 19th-century Ireland

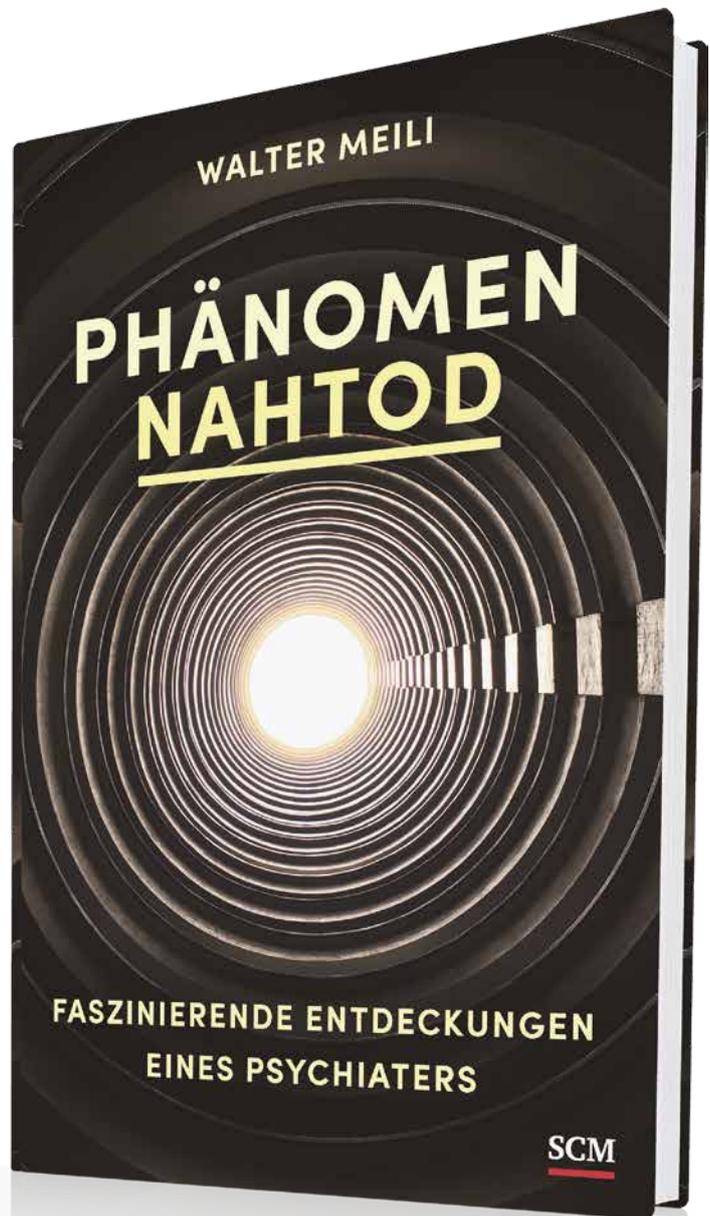

Stephanie Rapp

was active for several years as a leader of "Students for Christ" in Freiburg, a fellowship of evangelical students. She now works as an editor and author. She has a passion for stories full of suspense and information. She is married and has two children.

The Near-death Phenomenon

What really happens when we die? An atheist is clinically dead – and encounters Jesus. A child almost dies during an operation - and then tells us what Heaven is like. What should we make of such sensational near –death experiences? The psychiatrist Dr Meili concludes that many of these reports are credible; they take a similar course, and their contents are the same in many details. This topic raises intriguing questions, to which the author finds astounding and encouraging answers.

- A scientific perspective
- Takes Burpo & Co. as its point of departure

is a specialist in psychiatry and psychotherapy; he was senior physician in a psychiatric clinic and now works freelance in Basel. He regularly gives lectures on aspects of psychiatry, psychotherapy and spiritual guidance.

Reformation of the Heart

500 years of the Reformation - but what are we celebrating? And does it have anything to do with us today – with our daily lives, our faith, our hearts? Christina Brudereck and Jürgen Mette take us on a four-week journey to the four discoveries of the Reformation: grace, the Bible, Christ and faith. With a personal or theological emphasis, and at times humorously, lyrically or even provocatively, they approach these four pillars, which touch our own hearts as soon as we submit to their influence.

- Celebrating the anniversary of the Reformation with our hearts
- Challenging thoughts for our day and age

Jürgen Mette

is a theologian; he was managing director of “Stiftung Marburger Medien” and an assistant lecturer at the Protestant university “Evangelische Hochschule Tabor”. He has been writing books since being diagnosed with Parkinson’s disease in 2009.

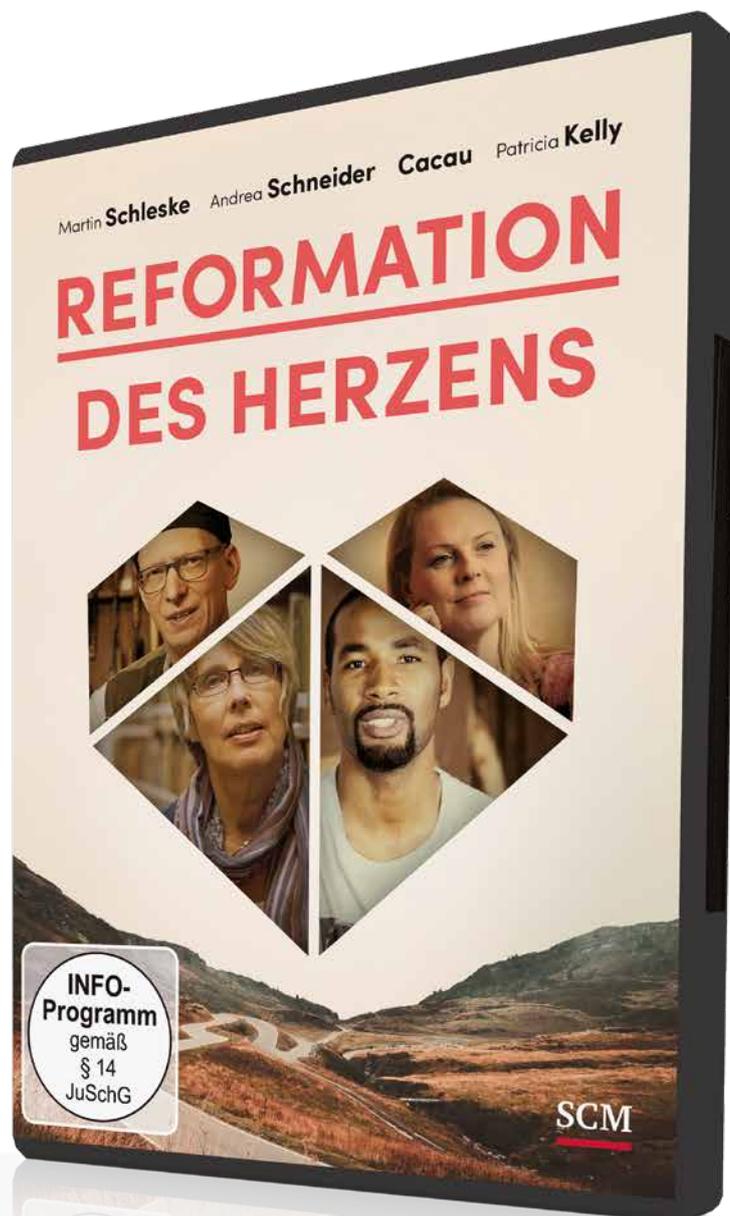

Christina Brudereck

speaks, writes poetry and books, and travels, while connecting theology and lyric poetry, spirituality and culture. She lives in Essen as a member of the Protestant community Kirubai and is involved with the YMCA.

Stars Shine at Night

The universal puzzle as to why a good God does not always step in to prevent suffering in this world is not solved in this book. But Thomas Härry shows how it is possible to hold fast to God and to experience how he can mysteriously give rise to goodness within us – even in the midst of pain. He sensitively and discerningly shares observations and experiences, and devises approaches to an attitude of heart that sets out to find God in suffering rather than to try to understand him.

- A top SCM author
- A universal topic

Thomas Härry, born in 1965, lives with his family in Aarau, Switzerland. He lectures on theology and leadership at the Theological-Diaconal Seminary in Aarau and is an author and a spiritual advisor to executives.

Unfinished

Andreas “Boppi” Boppert finds that many Christians are reluctant to undertake the adventure of following Jesus because they are all too aware of their unfinished state – their rough edges and weaknesses – and become disheartened. He encourages us to accept our own limitations and sinfulness, while at the same time holding fast to the belief that God is willing and able to change things in our lives – and above all through us! Relaxing and challenging: Following Jesus – for normal people!

Did Our Hearts Not Burn?

Does your heart still burn for God? Really and truly? Many Christians would like more passion in their spiritual lives. They miss genuine life, fire and enthusiasm in their relationship with Jesus. Rainer Harter, founder and director of the “Gebetshaus” (house of prayer), a sort of 24-7 prayer initiative in Freiburg invites you to discover anew the beauty of God. Various exercises show how this can be done in practice. Let yourself be overwhelmed by God’s love!

- By the director of the “Gebetshaus” in Freiburg
- An invitation to encounter God in an entirely new way

Rainer Harter

founded the interdenominational Gebetshaus in Freiburg in 2003 and has been its director since that time. He worked in a research institute before giving up his dream job in order to follow God’s calling on a full-time basis.

Man, Unshaven

Men often define themselves above all by what they do. In the process, they adopt unhealthy survival strategies. Their fear of inadequacy prevents them from living out their genuine calling as men of God. Marcel Hager, head of the 4th Musketeer movement in Switzerland, emphasises that being a child of God is always what counts most. A calling in life only arises on the basis of a secure identity.

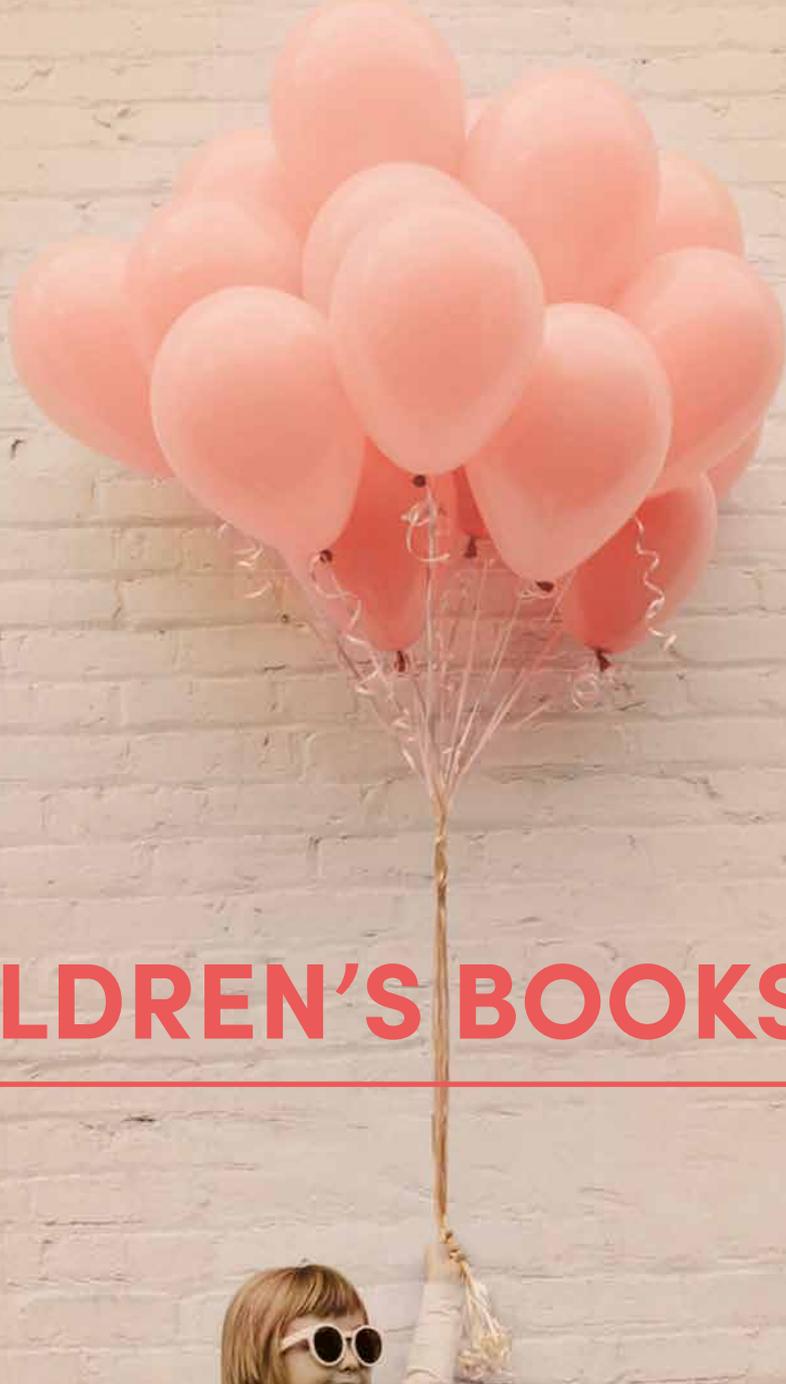

- From the head of the 4th Musketeer movement in Switzerland
- Shows men that their calling arises from their identity

Marcel Hager

Take a Break, Hamster Henri!

For all his work and his cursing about the blackbird's singing, Hamster Henri becomes so worn out that one day he can't run away from the fox. The blackbird saves Henri's life by distracting the fox at the last moment. Wanda the wood mouse cares for him until he regains his strength. And Henri finally not only comes to realise that the blackbird doesn't want to annoy anyone with his song, but he also concludes: "Everybody is different, and no one has the right to change another creature."
