Living is the New Dying

Death, the Lord Jesus Christ, Love and Myself

Johanna Klöpper – young, lively and in love with life – decides to deal with the subject that frightens her the most: Dying. How do you face death? What remains at the end? And how do God and faith fit in? In search for answers she begins to work in a hospice. She cries, she laughs, she lives – and takes the reader on a personal journey. Doing this she achieves a real masterpiece: To write a book about dying, filled to the brim with the joy of life.

A brilliantly written book on death and life!

My Story about Desire, Faith and Beyond

What makes a well-known evangelist suddenly question everything he believes in and preaches? Why does he swap the pulpit for the red-light district of Berlin? The Jesus House speaker and host of Willow-Creek youth conferences used to stand in front of thousands of juveniles and whole-heartedly preach forgiveness of sins and a life with Jesus. Now he walks the talk. He visits former companions, role models and friends. All of whom are interesting people. He talks to them about God, Jesus and evangelism. His findings will surprise you.

A Unique Kind of New Beginning

Journal of a Farewell

Has everything come to an end? Or is it a new beginning? Especially men experience retirement as a step into the unknown. Jürgen Werth, the head of ERF Media for many years, has made this experience. He has recorded what his head and his heart dictated to him. The result is a journal of an emotional roller coaster; of a resignation and a fresh start. Those who have been through similar situations can relive the experience; those about to face this challenge can see what lies ahead of them. A worldly-wise and honest book with valuable insights.

Why I'm Not an Atheist

Faith for sceptics

»God is an illusion and faith is bad.«

With this sort of statement Atheism has been making its presence felt lately.

But what about God? The resurrection: Fake? A legend? Are faith and reason enemies? Can God be experienced at all? Alexander Garth knows the sceptics' arguments. With thoughtfulness and humour he shows that there are good reasons to believe in God. Passionately he invites the reader to start the search.

My God, Jesus!

His miracles move the world

They are the most fascinating miracles the world has ever seen: When water is turned to wine, a man walks on water, a dead man leaves his funeral cave – then we wonder: »My God, Jesus!« This man makes headlines. Some believe they know him, others are rediscovering him: Who is Jesus really? He is uniquely peculiar, he is human and more. For those who encounter him, he opens up new worlds and ultimately even heaven. Based on the gospel of John, Steffen Kern invites us to immerse in the story of Jesus, and to be astonished: »My God, Jesus!«

Pleasure of Love

Shameless and genuine pleasure

Good and passionate sex doesn't have to remain a dream. Every couple can learn to discover and live eroticism. Veronika Schmidt knows the sex weariness that puts a strain on so many marriages. I don't feel like it? Too stressed? Bashful at heart? Change is possible. Outspoken and relaxed, the author speaks on how couples can perceive new passion and enjoy sex. In doing so she includes faith. She demonstrates how beautifully and erotically the Bible talks about intimacy. This is liberating. Her message for couples: Love and passion can be learned.

Saying Yes to Thankfulness

Discovered in the Bible – experienced today

Whoever takes a closer look will discover countless stories about gratitude in the Bible. Each one demonstrates a particular aspect and has its very own facet. This makes it clear that gratitude is far more than a polite phrase, but stretches to all areas of life. In 16 chapters, the former speaker of »Wort-zum-Sonntag« and well-known preacher Andrea Schneider draws an inspiring picture of gratitude that gives impulses and ideas for everyday life.

Move – Discover Life

Faith is more than you think

The one who moves can discover new things! This book shows that God is no old hat, but is still good for a surprise. Tobias Teichen dusts off concepts and definitions such as the Holy Spirit, Bible or repentance, so that it becomes clear that God is still modern and relevant in our age. The Heavenly Father isn't interested in dull answers and rigid thought patterns – but in a living and vibrant relationship. The stylish and continuous four-colour design helps to underline the strong message of this voyage of discovering a new faith.

You are Entrusted to Yourself

Spiritual and personal growth

We all want a fulfilled life – where our personality and talents unfold, stumbling blocks are overcome, crises conquered and changes mastered. As Christians, we also desire to grow spiritually and become like Jesus. Sometimes we meet people who have almost reached this goal. Then we ask: How is this possible? So authentic, confident, straightforward, strong, affectionate and appreciative... so like Jesus? The author encourages to honestly examine one's life, take specific actions and to find out what the Bible says about spiritual growth.

Live out of Love

Moving the world from heaven

Love is the true meaning and the highest goal God wants to achieve in and among mankind. It alone can move hearts, connect people and change lives. But often we find love difficult and try to push it: sacrificing and achieving, pressuring and threatening, striving for rewards and acclaim. During a two month timeout, Peter Höhn pursued the secret of love. His insights and deep encounters with God inspire and touch the heart. If we yearn for the Holy Spirit, he will show us the way of love in every situation – a way from which all emerge as winners.

Peace and Happiness – Not a Bit of it!

How the Bible helps us to master conflicts

Christians argue just like everyone else does. But where does this stem from? Astrid Eichler shows that all conflicts can be traced down to three large »battlefields«: It's a matter of being or not being, having or not having and right or wrong. Based on biblical stories she takes a look at the origins and possible developments of conflicts. She gives insight into her own conflicts and gives practical ideas how to manage tensions.

How God gives us Space to Live

A plea for a broader faith

Those who interpret discipleship as a denial of one's own needs often experience a suffering of the soul. Diligently researched, Julius Steinberg, author and professor of theology, puts the liberating truth of the history of creation and the ten commandments in contrast: right from the beginning God provided protected spaces where body and soul are meant to exist! First-hand accounts and practical ideas show us ways to grant ourselves and others these spaces.

Angels, Shepherds, Kings?

Twenty-four discoveries in the Christmas story

Quite a few people find the Christmas story to be nothing more than a touching legend. Indeed popular piety has repainted the biblical report and reduced the characters to colourful nativity figurines. Taking a closer look however, you will find interesting, real people. The author deals with difficult topics, and places the birth of Jesus into a large theological, general context, reaching from creation to the second coming of Christ. With its 24 chapters, this book is ideal for the advent seasons and gives an in-depth understanding of Christmas.

Through the Christmas Season with Children

Baking, crafting, singing and reading

In their new big Christmas book, Cornelia Mack and her daughter Katharina Drechsler have put together everything that lights up the dark time of year for children. Next to modern stories, you can find craft instructions, recipes, and the origin stories of many Christmas songs, together with the notes and lyrics. The ideas help to consciously experience the autumn and Christmas time together with children – in the family, in preschool, in elementary schools or in Sunday school. The elaborate illustrations beautifully round off this concept.
